OLG to offer patriotic rosary July 4 patriotic rosary service will be held at Our Lady of the Gulf Church on Friday, July 4, at 7 p.m.

The Rosary will be dedicated to our nation and all its citizens, living here and throughout the world, said the Rosary committee at the church.

This is the sixth in a series of ongoing monthly services held on the first Friday of each month. The services began in response to the war in Iraq when several ladies in the church decided that it would be a good idea to give people of all religions and walks of life a chance to pray for peace on a regular basis.

During this time of turmoil in our world it is time for citizenship, prayer, and thanksgiving. With some of the current events such as the Sept. 11 attacks, the war in Iraq, and the constant threat of nuclear war, we should all keep in mind how precious time is to all of us, said committee members, and the numerous lives that have been lost in the name of protecting our freedoms.

It is a time to be thankful for the freedom that we enjoy and sometimes take for granted, freedom that most of the world has never known, they say, and to take the time to pray for those individuals who have made the ultimate sacrifice so that we may enjoy those freedoms. Next Friday's service is just such an opportunity when many people will be coming to the church to enjoy the annual crab festival.

Patriotic hymns will be sung throughout the hour long service. A military service book is available for signing for any active or inactive members of the military. The service will be dedicated, as in the past to the conversion of all people for peace in their hearts, families, country and the

Waveland residents say senior housing location not suitable

Meeting at Gulfside Assembly softens views of some residents about Rometta's Place project near retreat

he goodwill and fellowship dispensed at an informational meeting held at Gulfside Assembly Methodist Tuesday evening may have served to soften the views of at least some of the residents of a quiet Waveland neighborhood just north of the retreat.

Several hundred of the residents had formed a group to oppose the senior housing that Gulfside has proposed to build along property they own at South and Brown Streets and Sears Avenue. Architect Allison Anderson presented an overview of the project. She said the completed full phase project would house a maximum of about 120 seniors. Thirty-six one bedroom units are planned for the initial phase.

Anderson said energy efficient construction, green ways and cisterns at each unit would insure that the project would not impact the area in a negative way. Seniors over 62 years old would be eligible for the reduced cost housing.

Director Marion Martin, presented Gulfside's philosophy behind the project she has named Rometta's Place, to serve a need in the community, she said. Martin also gave a brief history of Gulfview and of its role in the community over the past 80 years. Rometta's

Place, Martin said, is only part of a $17 million Stewardship and Growth Plan that is in Gulfside's future

Few in attendance tried to dispute the need for senior housing, but many said they thought the proposed location was not suitable.

The most widely mentioned reason was that seniors would not have access to shopping and other serv-

Many people were strictly opposed to a change in zoning in the R-1 single family dwelling zoned area, saving that a zoning change to R-3 would set a dangerous precedent in the city.

Many voiced the fear that once zoning was changed there was no guarantee that only senior housing would be built, that the area would be open to other kinds of multifamily housing developments.

Others said they could possibly accept Rometta's Place if it were built under a special exception rather than a zoning change, with the special exception stipulating that the property be used only for senior hous-

Gulfside's business manager Wilma Dunbar kept track of al the questions and promised to have answers to as many as possible by the time the next meeting is hosted.

Martin said the project is only in the planning stages and that Gulfside's is seeking as much public feedback as they can get to shape the plans.

The night before, outside the postponed planning and zoning meeting, many of the neighbors present expressed a little more of a hard line view.

Stan Stadnicki was concerned that there would be increased traffic. Pat Erichsen said she was already getting sinkholes in her yard from storm water runoff from the Sundance subdivision located in the Mary Bernard-Blanchard said she would move if the project were

Robert Zeigler said he was concerned that property values would drop and that people who would be living there would be attracted to drugs and crime.

Security to change at Port Bienville Industrial Park

Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission deputy director Greg Deakle proposed a complete turn-about for port security this week and the termination of services by long time security company Gulf Coast Security.

Deakle's plan calls for the commission to go into the security business with the hiring of six full-time employees to take over the job that Gulf Coast was not doing, he said.

Deakle said the request comes after months of complaints by port tenants and others that security was less than acceptable at the port gate and grounds.

One of the final deciding points was when a tenant approached the gate and stopped to present identification. The guard at the gate was asleep and could not be awakened so the tenant went into the guard house and opened the gate himself, Deakle said.

Several minor break ins and thefts have also occurred at the port, Deakle said. These incidents and others, coupled with increased security requirements at all port facilities due to 9/11, made the decision even more timely, he said.

Originally, Deakle suggested that the company be dismissed on July 1, but commission attorney Robert Genin said that a thirty day notice should be given even though the company is working without a contract.

Commission

David McDonald voted against the proposal. He suggested the commission should take proposals from other security providers rather that take on the responsibility themselves. Most commission members were not so sure about going into the security business either and agreed with McDonald, but gave into Deakle's request in the end.

Deakle said a new policy will be developed over the next few weeks for visitors to the port. Some tenants have requested no visitors to the port unless they have specific appointments, he said. Issues surrounding public areas at the port such as a boat launch may prevent this from becoming a reality, however.

In other business:

• If you thought you heard a train whistle, but where no where near the train tracks, (or there were no trains in sight), please report it to local law enforcement. The bells and whistles were stolen off a train engine at Port Bienville two weekends ago and so far there are no leads on where they could have gone. The whistles have a very distinctive sound, said Deakle, and require a lot of air pressure to activate. The commission would appreciate any information on the missing whis-

Beautification committee prepares for Sept. cleanup

The event is always held on the third Saturday of September, which will be Sept. 20 this

The Hancock Chamber works in conjunction with the Mississippi Marine Debris Task Force and in Hancock County receives support from the Hancock County Board Supervisors and cities of Louis and Bay St. Waveland.

Last year was the first time for Hancock County to use zone captains and it worked very well.

Once again the committee has decided to use zone captains for the cleanup.

Last September, there were a total of ten and it is hoped to have that number reach 15 for this year's cleanup.

In Hancock County sions, associations, etc., and these are places zone captains are needed.

Prior to cleanup day, zone captains are provided with supplies to issue to volunteers in their area for the cleanup.

Local poets plan Poetry Center

Next poetry reading set today at Da Beach House

For the past year many local poets have been meeting on the second and fourth Thursday of each month at Da Beach House on South Beach Boulevard for poetry readings.

With the broadening interest in poetry and other genre, they are now "Poetry planning a Corner" that will open in September, providing a quiet place to concentrate, to create or read, a place to serve poets and writers creative needs.

Local poet, Gail Mollring will lead this effort. Three years ago Mollring established the first Poetry Center in Las Vegas to serve poets in the community. The Poetry Center hosted weekly readings, distributed a poets monthly cal-a city-wide poetry contest, arranged radio readings for local poets and produced a bi-monthly newsletter that featured poetry by local artists.

During Mollring's tenure as Poetry Center coordinator, links were established with the university poetry department and the local public radio station. Together they produced a poetry broadcast highlighting local talent. She provided assistance in reviving community participation in the YMCA Writers Voice summer program for youth.

Future events planned 463-2654.

THE SEA COAST ECHO endar of events, organized for the Poetry Center in Bay St. Louis are workshops, contests, guest poets, and publishing assistance for local writers. A monthly television appearance on WLOX "Four O'clock" is also on tap for local talent. The first scheduled program will be broadcast on Sept.

She was the youngest, and I must add, the most eager, ebullient delegate in the Mississippi delegation. Then from Ashland, she had been elected as an at-large delegate.

Cindy is making her first bid for office in seeking the iob of her former boss, state Treasurer Marshall Bennett, who is giving up the post after 16 years to join a New York law firm.

In her 12 years in the state Senate, Blackmon has gained valuable legislative' experience, including serving as a member of the keenly-sought Legislative Budget Committee and vice-chair of Senate Budget the Committee.

Despite her educational background in tax law, business administration and her legal practice, Blackmon is conscious that she may not have been given some key Senate committee chairmanships because she is a woman, and black.

In the four years Amy Tuck has been lieutenant governor, Blackmon says "I believe that the talent of the Senate has not been properly utilized," adding: "We cannot afford for our brightest minds not to be used more to shape public policy."

Obviously, that was an oblique shot at Tuck who ultimately is Blackmon's target in seeking the state's No. 2 job. Tuck was elected four years ago as a Democrat, then switched to the Republican Party last December, and now is running for the job on the GOP

Blackmon makes a point of the fact that while she became a member of the Mississippi State Bar without having to take the Bar Exam on her graduation from the Ole Miss Law School in 1981 (the last class permitted the "diploma privilege") two years later when she got her masters in tax law at NYU, "I took and passed the New York State Bar exam on the first try."

Ironically, Republicans, who now embrace Tuck as one of their own, were eager in 1999 to let Mississippi voters know that Tuck, after in the MBA National finishing the former Urban/Rural program at Jackson School of Law, had failed in three attempts to pass the state bar exam and was never admitted to prac-

Recent disclosures that Tuck has never accounted for $500,000 in loans made to her 1999 campaign for lieutenant governor also did go unnoticed by Blackmon in an interview I had with her.

"I don't believe that voters might worry about me being black or a woman and overlook Amy Tuck not telling us what happened to $500,000 in campaign funds," the Canton senator said.

As Democratic foes for the nomination, Blackmon faces Troy Brown, Sr. of Itta Bena, the only other black, and former state Supreme Court Justice James L. Roberts. Brown had made an unsuccessful race for U.S. Senate in 2000 and Roberts made a disappointing race for governor in 1999.

"child bride" when I first met her at the 1984 Democratic National convention, says her husband has since passed away. On her own, she has built such a remarkable business career that she was named one of the state's top 50 businesswomen in 2002 by the Mississippi Business Journal.

"I guess I have come a long way for a black kid from the tiny town of Ashland (Benton County, the smallest in the state)," she says. While at Rust College, she was picked to become one of the 27 fellows Amherst (Massachusetts).

Then hired by Bennett as an assistant when he first took office in 1988, Cindy spent six years in the Treasurer's office, helping to organize what was an antiquated system and as she says," bring it into the 20th century."

Her experience in the treasurer's office, Ayers-Elliott contends, makes her more qualified to handle the job than any of the other two Democrats, or the three Republicans in the treasurer's race.

Obviously, her first major obstacle to the Democratic nomination is Anderson, the only other black in the race. But State Sen. Rob Smith of Richland, noted as an aggressive campaigner, also is a threat.

On the GOP side are former state Transportation Commissioner Burkes, state Rep Andrew Kethings of Natchez and banker Tate Jackson Reeves, the latter supposedly the GOP insiders favorite.

being accepted for the 2003-2004 class of Leadership Mississippi.

Sponsored Mississippi Economic Council, this award-winning program is the second oldest statewide leadership program in the nation.

Leadership Mississippi's purpose is to identify emerging young leaders up to age 40 to help them discover and develop leadership skills which can be used to make a positive impact for the future growth and development of their state and local communities.

Training sessions are led by a faculty of distinguished university professors under the direction of Leadership Mississippi dean, Dr. Thomas L. Wells. Dr. Wells serves as dean of the School and Special Programs and as Professor of Adult Education at the University by the of South Alabama in Mobile.

Sessions kick off in October with a three-day retreat. Then, over the course of seven months, participants take part in a program agenda which includes leadership skills training, a practical field exercise in identifying specific problem areas, and development of action plans for problem solving based on team research.

Leadership Mississippi Chair Robin Robinson of director of Laurel, Organization Development for Sanderson Farms, recommends the program for personal and professional growth. Approximately $860 was taken in the robberies, and items valued at around $200 were taken from The Trace of Lace. The Circle K and Trace of Lace were both robbed on Sunday, Dec. 8 -Circle K, early in the morning; Trace of Lace, just after closing at 9 p.m. In a statement issued last December. Varnell said a Circle K clerk told police that "two black males entered the store with jackets covering their faces. One displayed what appeared to be a semi-automatic handgun and asked the clerk for all the money." The suspects in the Trace of Lace robbery were described as a white male male, both armed with semi-automatic handguns, Varnell said.

At the time of the robberies, "Vaughn was already out on bond from a previous incident where he was charged with aggravated assault where (he allegedly) shot at Germaine Lymuel at the Waveland Soccer Field and a black or Hispanic on Oct. 8. 2002." Varnell said.

> Waveland investigators had already identified Vaughn as a suspect in the three armed robberies and felony warrant for his arrest listed in the National Crime Information -Computer (N.C.I.C.) when officers from the Franklin County Sheriff's office determined he was a suspect in a burglary there. Deputies there alerted the Waveland Police Department, Investigator Howard Parker and Officer Casey Favre of these problems will be remedied on at least one section of the street from Hwy. 90 to the railroad tracks, when a long awaited MDOT project finally gets underway.

The project, which has been in the planning stages for the past several years, is finally nearing a starting point, said Waveland Mayor Longo Tommy Wednesday. The city should be ready to go out for bids on it within about 60 days, now that a clean site certificate has been issued and the plans sent to MDOT for final approval, he said. The project will actually result in very little widening of the existing road, Longo said, but the 100 foot right of way required by MDOT to issue a clear site certificate and allow construction to begin took a long time to prepare.

Fourteen obstructions along the road way had to be cleared, including one structure, and the process ended up taking a lot longer than originally expected. What the project will do is add an overlay to the Longo said the city is existing roadway to bring already preparing applica-

Much of the drainage needs in the area were last addressed during the old WPA work project in the late 1930's and early 1940's. he said.

Besancon, Naheed Akhtar, Hannah Andrew Methodist doctors urge Mississippians to protect themselves from summer heat

Joey Hawkins likes to see body temperature to rise even for a few minutes, can his football players working hard but he knows even the tough" athletes have limits in the heat of Mississippi summers. Hawkins, head football and track coach at Jackson Academy, and his staff make sure players get plenty of fluids, starting the night before a practice and all during the day. They watch for signs of heat exhaustion and on extremely hot days they take breaks every 15 to 20 minutes.

"Exposure to extreme heat can be dangerous and potentially life threatening", said Dr. Rahul Vohra, medical director Methodist Rehab. "There are several heat-related illnesses that can occur, such as sunburn, cramps, heat exhaustion, heat stroke, and even death."

Sunburn causes redness and pain in the area burned. Blisters, swelling, fever, nausea, vomiting and headaches can occur.

Heat cramps are usually severe cramps in the leg and abdomen area, accompanied by heavy sweating.

Heat exhaustion causes weakness and lightheadedness, heavy sweating, vomiting and fainting. Skin appears cold, clammy and pole.

· Heat stroke is the most dangerous and life threatening heat illness, It causes over 106 degrees. Skin appears dry and red and a person's pulse will be last. Victims may be disoriented, combative and argumentative. Heat stroke can quickly lead to unconsciousness and death.

Dr. Vohra recommends always wearing light colored and loose fitting clothing, staying indoor during extreme heat and to never ignore the signs of heat stroke.

"A heat stroke occurs when a person's body temperature rises. In an effort to lower the body temperature, the brain dilates all blood vessels in the skin, said Dr. Vohra. "The skin usually appears red, hot and dry from dehydration."

Dr. Vohra recommends cooling the victim as quickly as possible and taking them to a hospital. "Place a cool cloth or ice pack on the Victim's head and neck and begin managing their extremities," said Dr. Vohra. "Place ice an head and neck area first, followed by the armpits and groin.' Along with taking care of themselves, parents and caregivers need to take extra precautions with young children and animals, said Lauren Fairburn, director of Think First Methodist Rehab's statewide safety and injury prevention program. "Leaving a child in a car, turn into a deadly situation," said Fairburn. She says that temperatures inside a car escalate quickly and children and pets can die in a short period of time.

"Even if the windows are rolled down and the outside temperature is 83 degrees. the temperature inside the car can reach 109 degrees Fahrenheit in approximately 15 minutes,"

Fairburn. Dr. Vohra's offers the following tips for staying safe during summer heat:

Stay in a cool, wellventilated area as much as possible during extreme heat. Check on the elderly often to make sure they have proper cooling systems, food and water. Avoidstrenuous activities like running, biking and outside work during the hottest time of the day. Do not stay or leave

anyone in closed, parked cars during hot weather. Drink plenty of water to prevent dehydration.

Do not drink alcohol or beverages with caffeine.

Never bundle a baby in blankets or heavy clothing when outside in the heat. Infants sweat glands are not well developed and do not tolerate heat well.

Diamondhead Water & Sewer District Annual Drinking Water Quality Report for the year of 2002

Issued June 20, 2003 We are pleased to present to you this year's Annual Quality Water Report. This report is designed to inform and explain to you about the outstanding water and service we deliver to you every day. Our constant goal is to provide you with a safe and dependable supply of drinking water. We want you to understand the efforts we make to continually improve the water treatment process and protect our resources.

Your water comes to you from deep, clean, clear wells nearly 1000 feet down in the Graham Ferry Formation of the Miocene Aquifer. This water is naturally crystal clear and of Artesian spring water quality.

We are pleased to report that our drinking water is clean and safe, and meets all federal and state requirements. This report shows our water quali-

If you have any questions about this report or concerning your water utility, please contact our main office at 255-5813. We want our valued customers to be informed about their water utility. If you want to learn more, please attend any of our regularly scheduled board meetings. They are held at 9am on the second Monday of each month at our main office on Park Ten Drive.

The Diamondhead Water & Sewer District routinely monitors for constituents in your drinking water according to Federal and State laws. The following table shows the results of our monitoring for the period of January 1, 2002 to December 31*, 2002. As water travels over the land or underground, it can pick up substances or contaminants such as microbes, inorganic and organic chemicals, and radioactive substances. All drinking water, including bottled drinking water, may be reasonably expected to contain at least small amounts of some constituents. It's important to remember that the presence of these constituents does not necessarily pose a health risk.

In this table you will find many terms and abbreviations you might not be familiar with. To help you better understand these terms we've provided the following definitions:

Non-Detects (ND) - laboratory analysis indicates that the constituent is not present.

Parts per million (ppm) or Milligrams per liter (mg/l) - one part per million corresponds to one minute in two years or a single penny in $10,000.

Parts per billion (ppb) or Micrograms per liter - one part per billion corresponds to one minute in 2,000 years, or a single penny in $10,000,000. Parts per trillion (ppt) or Nanograms per liter (nanograms/1) - one part per trillion corresponds to one minute in 2,000,000 years, or a single penny in $10,000,000,000.

Parts per quadrillion (ppq) or Picograms per liter (picograms/l) - one part per quadrillion corresponds to one minute in 2,000,000,000 years or one penny in $10,000,000,000,000.

Picocuries per liter (pCi/L) - picocuries per liter is a measure of the radioactivity in water.

Millirems per year (mrem/yr) - measure of radiation absorbed by the body.

Contaminant

Million Fibers per Liter (MFL) - million fibers per liter is a measure of the presence of asbestos fibers that are longer than 10 micrometers. Nephelometric Turbidity Unit (NTU) - nephelometric turbidity unit is a measure of the clarity of water. Turbidity in excess of 5 NTU is just

Action Level - the concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements which a water system must fol-

Treatment Technique (TT) - A treatment technique is a required process intended to reduce the level of a contaminant in drinking water. Maximum Contaminant Level - The "Maximum Allowed" (MCL) is the highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology.

Maximum Contaminant Level Goal - The "Goal" (MCLG) is the level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.

As you can see by the table, our system had no violations. We're proud that your drinking water meets or exceeds all Federal and State requirements. We have learned through our monitoring and testing that some constituents have been detected. The EPA has determined that your water IS SAFE

MCL's are set at very stringent levels. To understand the possible health effects described for many regulated constituents, a person would have to drink 2 liters of water every day at the MCL level for a lifetime to have a one-in-a-million chance of having the described health effect. All sources of drink? Liters of water every day at the MCL level for a litetime to have a one-in-a-million chance or naving the described nearin effect. All sources of drinking water are subject to potential contamination by substances that are naturally occurring or man made. These substances can be microbes, inorganic or organic chemicals and radioactive substances. All drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that the water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency's Safe Drinking Water Hotline

Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by cryptosporidium and other microbiological contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

In our continuing efforts to maintain a safe and dependable water supply it may be necessary to make improvements in your water system. The costs of these improvements may be reflected in the rate structure. Rate adjustments may be necessary in order to address these improvements.

Thank you for allowing us to continue providing your family with clean, quality water this year. In order to maintain a safe and dependable water ture adjustments. Thank you for understanding.

Parents ask Dr. Ginger Wishik, child and adolescent psychiatrist-"Are sleep disturbances a symptom of illness?"

Some children walk and talk in their sleep, wet the bed, and grind their teeth. Nightmares, which begin at a variety of ages, affect girls more often than boys. Fortunately, as they mature, children usually get over common sleep problems. Many childhood sleep problems are related to irregular sleep habits. To minimize common sleep problems, a parent should develop a consistent bedtime and a regular routine for children. However, sleep problems that persist and/or interfere with daytime activities can be symptoms of an emotional difficulty, like depression or anxiety. We're glad to send you information, or if you think your child might be suffering, call us now or anytime. We always have a counselor standing by to help you.

USM to offer geography program at NASA this fall

he University of Southern Mississippi has been selected to offer a graduate degree program in geography at NASA's John Stennis Space Center starting this fall.

Administered by the Department of Geography, the degree focuses on advanced training and student research in geospatial applications, remote sensing, and geographic information systems (GIS).

The geography department at Southern Miss was selected as the best fit for students at Stennis after several universities in Mississippi and Louisiana presented their programs to the Center's Policy Board on Higher Education.

A 36-hour program, the master's will offer all of its classes at Stennis, where the majority of students are employees there seeking to continue and upgrade their education.

"USM is providing a oneof-a-kind opportunity for employees at Stennis, as well as for potential students living in southern Mississippi," said Dr. Clifton Dixon, professor and chair of the geography department.

"It is an excellent association when skilled employees can apply their work experience to graduate opportunities. The outcome will result in some of the best graduates in geospatial technologies anywhere in the U.S.'

The graduate program will utilize faculty from Southern Miss' geography

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Champion Chrysler, Jeep of Bay St. Louis and Gulfport will once again partner with the Bay St. Louis Fire Department to present Blast in the Bay, the annual classic and street rod car show to benefit the Firemen's Doll and Toy Fund. The sixth annual show will be held Saturday, July 13, on the festival grounds of the historic Bay Saint Louis Depot.

draws The show motorists and car enthusiasts from six states and all entry fees and other funds raised go directly to support children and families in need throughout the Hancock County community. The local firemen have been managing the fund for more than a quarter of a century.

Registration fee for the event is $15 per vehicle. Top Ten awards, including Champion's, Best of Show, Mayes, Chiefs, People's Favorite, Firefighters, and Friends of the Depot choices, Furthest Driven, Oldest Vehicle and for the first year the John Childress Memorial Award for continued show support are one of a kind awards designed by Bay St. Louis artist Vicki Lever-Niolet. Forty additional sponsor plaques and prizes will be awarded throughout the day.

"Champion is a wonderful partner for this charitable project and they are supported by our small business community in helping us help the less fortunate. We are pleased and proud that they are giving their support for a second year," said Deputy Chief Gary Maurice, show organizer.

The fire department began the Doll and Toy Fund repairing old toys and bikes donated to the department for distribution, but liability risks increased and the Fund had to accept and purchase new factory packaged toys. To meet these newer needs the department requested private donations and many donors have participated every year and are the backbone

The Firemen's Doll and Toy Fund fills a major need in the larger Hancock County communitý, especially during years of high unemployment and economic hardship. We have helped an average of 800 children a year over the last six years.

Friends of the Animal Shelter in Hancock Co. receives $15,000 grant

THE SEA COAST ECHO he Board of Directors of Friends of the Animal Shelter in Hancock County was presented with a check for $15,000 at its June meeting by board member and Gulfport PETsMART manager, Calvin Sharp. Friends of the Animal Shelter in Hancock County is a 501 (c) 3 nonprofit organization committed to promoting public awareness and improving the lives of animals and people in our community. Its mission is to significantly reduce the number of unwanted cat/dog litters through positive prevention programs and to eliminate euthanasia as a method of controlling the pet population.

Each year between 10 and 15 million companion animals are abandoned in the United States. The primary cause is the failure of owners to have their pets spayed or neutered. In Hancock County 79% of the 4,000-plus animals brought into the Waveland Animal Shelter in 2002 were humanely euthanized. Spaying and neutering is the only viable solution to controlling the pet over population.

Funds from the grant will be used to purchase surgical equipment and supplies for the newly constructed spay and neuter clinic at the Waveland Animal Shelter. No animal will be allowed to leave the shelter without being spayed or neutered once the clinic is fully equipped and operational. FRIENDS is confident such will occur within 90-120 days of receiving the $15,000 of the original $25,000 request from the PETsMART grant. This much-needed clinic has come to fruition through various fundraising programs sponsored by FRIENDS along with the generous support of local citizens and community partnerships. Since its inception in 1987 PETsMART has made the decision not to sell dogs or cats in stores, but rather to sponsor pet adoptions from local shelters and humane groups. By partnering with more than 2,000 humane and rescue groups and customers nationwide, PETsMART and PETsMART Charities, instore adoption centers have saved the lives of nearly 1.5 million homeless pets.

Grants such as the one received by FRIENDS are made possible by the generous donations from MS Coast residents at the local PETsMART store in Gulfport during their semi-annual "Just A Buck Can Change Their Luck" fundraising campaign.

FRIENDS will be the fourth humane group along the Coast to partner with PETsMART once the spay & neuter clinic is completed.

Although the clinic will be focusing on animals adopted from the shelter pet owners may contact the shelter to obtain a reduced spay & neuter certificate to be used at local veterinarians by calling the shelter at 467-

Colonel Rebel latest confederate icon to fall

BY ALLEN G. BREED

Associated Press Writer t the University of Mississippi, the nast clings to the campus like kudzu.

It's in the face of the marble Confederate who stands over the entrance to the famed Circle. It's in the bullet-scarred Lyceum's enduring columns, reminders of the school's bloody 1962 integration. It's even in the school's beloved nickname, Ole Miss.

But as the years have passed, the school has done its best to bring Ole Miss into the New South. It's all but banished the once-ubiquitous Confederate battle flags from football games. "Dixie" has been scrapped as the unofficial fight song. And the annual spring bacchanalia is no longer known as ``Dixie Week.'

Now it appears the next to go is "Colonel Rebel," the school's barely reconstructed Confederate mascot, who for generations has cut a dapper figure with his widebrimmed hat cocked to the side, snow-white goatee and signature cane.

The football program announced Wednesday that old "Johnny Reb" wouldn't be on the sidelines this coming season though he remains an official university trademark and won't be disappearing from T-shirts and shot glasses anytime

His image, it seems, evokes a little too much history for administrators and the school's booster club, which has paid a New York consultant $30,000 to study options for a new mascot.

`The Confederacy is behind us," says athletic director Pete Boone. "I just think that it's time for us to change our whole thought process, our whole image, our whole look and feel about being the team of the 21st century."

And while Boone insists it's only the mascot, not the name, that's on the table, some alums believe it's all but impossible to separate the "Rebel" from "Colonel Rebel." They see it as only a matter of time before `Rebel" goes the way of the old Stanford Indian, Marquette Warrior and St. John's Redman.

``If remains unchecked, we will just be the Mississippi Wildcats or something," Memphis businessman Perry Mangum wrote to The (Jackson) Clarion-Ledger, threatening to cancel his season football tickets. "They are trying to get rid of the Old South imagery."

The debate is another reminder of what Oxford's most famous son, William Faulkner, once wrote: "The past is never dead. In fact, it's not even past."

Comical as it may sound today, Ole Miss became the Rebels because its old nickname, "The Flood," had bad connotations.

Coming off a 1935 season in which the football team went 9-3, the editors of the campus newspaper, The Mississippian, decided a new name was needed to "catch the public eye and fancy." It launched a con-

The first option always seems to be New Gold lantana. Believe it or not, there is a tropical vine that will bloom until the first freeze as well. It is called Brazilian Jasmine, or Mandevilla,

For years, the most popular variety has been Alice du Pont with its loads of large, pink, bellshaped flowers on a vigorous vine. The dark, glossy leaves have a leathery feel. If you have seen a big, pink-flowered vine growing up a neighbor's mailbox, this was probably the plant.

I suspect that Alice du Pont will find tough competition this year and in the near future.

There are two new red varieties: Best Red and my favorite, Ruby Star. closer in color to Alice du

Those of you who like white with a blush of pink will love White Delight or Monte. These also have pointed petals and are every bit as vigorous as Alice du Pont.

Mississippi Deep Sea Rodeo 2003 offers cash for fishermen, comfort for spectators

THE SEA COAST ECHO rganizers hope visitors get a better view of the fishing fun

When the Mississippi Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo kicks off its 55th year on July 3, the fishermen will still be king, but spectators will get the royal treatment as well.

More than 4,000 people are expected to enter the fishing competitions in the four-day event, billed as the "World's Largest Fishing Rodeo," and Rodeo President Chuck Dedeaux is planning for more than the usual 50,000 or so attendees

"With July 4 falling on a Friday, we're likely to see a bigger-than-usual turnout for the long weekend," he said.

The fishermen will be going after thousands of dollars in cash prizes. Anglers will compete in 22 saltwater categories and six freshwater categories, for both daily overall prizes and King and Queen Fisherman.

"We also have Shootouts for cobia, redfish and bass,' Dedeaux said. "This is where fishermen pay a registration fee and compete for 100 percent cash prizes. These events have seen a rise in participation throughout the years. We can also document any state records that are bro-

The 2003 Rodeo also will feature other traditional events, such as the one-day Children's Fishing Rodeo and the awarding of scholarships to the princesses selected during the Rodeo pageant, and a full entertainment lineup that includes the fish displays, carnival rides, vendor booths, live entertainment and the fireworks spectacular on July 4. New this year, Dedeaux explained, make the rodeo more enjoyable for spectators. "We've added more seating and cleared out space so people can watch the weigh-ins in a more comfortable environment," he said. "With crowds getting bigger each year, we decided it was time to make sure people could enjoy themselves more."

Although the event itself lasts only from July 3 to July 6, its impact extends well beyond the four-day run and the estimated $2 million it pumps into the economy, he added. Part of that impact is educational.

"Each year," Dedeaux said, "we build an expansive fish display consisting of the many varieties of fish that are caught in our hometown waterways."

The Rodeo also promotes conservation efforts by allowing samples of various fish to be taken by the students and researchers of the Marine Education and Research Centers. "The information that is obtained is an invaluable resource to track the various species of fish in our Gulf waters," Dedeaux said. "The Research Center counts on the Rodeo each year for this opportunity."

Sometimes he Seven years after Cole's even rode in on a horse named Traveler, a nod to Robert E. Lee's faithful steed.

`The little ol' man who says, 'Ah say, suh,' is the spirit of Ole Miss embodied in the figure of a Southern gentleman" declared a 1953 story in The Mississippian.

At first, the rebel imagery signaled defiance at the notion that a Deep South college couldn't keep up, athletically or academically, with the Harvards of the world.

But by the time the National Guard enforced James Meredith's enrollment at the muzzle of a rifle, what Mississippians were rebelling against was change.

Walking along the brick Circle, Associate Dean Don Cole can still see the hate in the eyes of one student as she drove by, waving a Confederate battle flag out the window. He can still smell the beer poured over him and other blacks as they huddled together at football games, trying in vain to join in that school spirit.

"I wanted to support the teams, but I couldn't, quote, Be a Rebel," says Cole, who was expelled from the school with six other blacks in 1969 for protesting what they saw as the school's racist ways.

I wanted them also to. integrate so that they could do much, much better, and I ignominious departure, Robert J. "Gentle Ben" Williams became the first black to play football for Ole Miss, and to be voted `Colonel Rebel" by his peers. Today, blacks make up 13 percent of the student body of 15,000.

On the 40th anniversary of Meredith's arrival, the university launched its Winter Institute for Racial Reconciliation.

Even the colonel has changed over the years, morphing from proud military officer to a more laidback plantation Bourbon.

But there's no escaping fact that he's Confederate to the core.

Boone says rival schools have used Colonel Reb over the years to convince black recruits that Ole Miss might not be the friendliest place for them.

But more than that, he says he wants to update the program's image, and he'd like to come up with something a little more intimidating than "an old man with a cane."

The private Ole Miss Loyalty Foundation has engaged the services of New York-based Phoenix Design Works, which recently completed updates of existing mascots for Tennessee, Arkansas and Harvard.

No changes are expected until at least after football season. But already, some are cringing at the prospect.

Sitting on a blanket in the shade of campus' Grove 17-year-old Cassi Thrash wonders what will be left of the Ole Miss her parents and grandparents attended by the time she gets there.

``It's crazy. They're taking away everything from everybody," says the Tupeloarea girl, who was on campus for a summer leadership institute named for U.S. Sen. Trent Lott, once an Ole Miss cheerleader. ``Part of the school's gone." But overall, Boone says there's been remarkably lit-

Ole Miss."

His son, current star quarterback Eli Manning, feels the same way. He doesn't care what they put on the side of his helmet, so long as it's not a magnolia blossom.

`I didn't fall in love with this place because of its name or its mascot. The rising senior says as he stands in a weight room plastered with banners that scream Rebel Pride" and Rebel Fradition."

Wide receiver Mike Espy, who is black, agrees.

Tell you the truth, we go out there on Saturdays and we play for Ole Miss. That's all," says Espy, still dripping with sweat from a round of sprints. "Rebel? That's a thing of the past."

The lack of "sound and fury" over the change might be because the change was announced during summer session, when most students and alus were away. Or could it be another reflection of a new Ole Miss?

The past may not be dead, Mr. Faulkner. But maybe, just maybe, it might finally be past.

Magic plans three-day July 4th celebration

eginning July 3
with a free fireworks display at 9 p.m., Casino
Magic Bay St.
Louis kicks off the holiday with a bang.

First, the deluxe fireworks show will be choreographed to patriotic music and free to the public. Then July 4 and 5, "A Salute To America's Golden Oldies' will be split into two days. July 4, The Coasters, The Drifters and The Platters will perform all their hits in one show beginning at 9 p.m. July 5, the legendary ladies of the 50s rock era Lesley Gore, Peggy March, The Chiffons, The Angels, The Marvelettes and The Shangri-Las all perform on one stage.

Tickets for each show, sold separately, are $14.95, $19.95 and $24.95 and can be purchased at the Casino Magic Box Office, by calling 1-800-5-MAGIC-5 or at any Ticketmaster location.

A Salute To America's Golden Oldies Friday, July 4 - The Gentlemen The Coasters are the supreme comedians of rock and roll. What's more, their impact has deepened with time.

Their songs, their parodies and the tunes that became million-selling records are revived in this new generation of music. The Coasters were the first vocal group to be inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame. They have appeared in 6 major movies and have amassed over 100 million record sales in their career. And to this date, their act is one of the liveliest and funniest in show business. Their hits include "Charlie Brown", "Along Came Jones", "Yakety Yak", and "Love Potion #9".

The Drifters. The Legendary Elsbeary Hobbs performed on the greatest Drifter hits of all time from 1958 until his untimely death in 1996. Now, Hobbs' wife, Odessa Hobbs, has united many of late husband's former band members as the Elsbeary Hobbs' Drifters to commemorate much of the great material to which he contributed so artistically. Elsbeary Hobbs' Drifters blends a tasteful mixture of their million sellers with contemporary standards, all presented within the context of the Drifters famous patented choreography. Their hits include "There Goes My Baby", "This Magic Moment", "Save the Last Dance For Me", "On Broadway", and "Under The Boardwalk".

The Platters formed in 1953 and by1955 recorded the ballad "Only You" which was the beginning of stardom for the group that was to become the most popular vocal group of the fifties.

To date, they have four number one songs and sixteen gold records. They have toured in 75 countries across the world and still spend much time abroad. Playing venues from Madison Square Garden to the Bottom Line, the group is still delighting audiences on a regular basis. In 1990 The Platters were inducted into The Rock and Roll Hall of Fame.

Their hits include "Only You", "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes", "Ebb Tide", "Twilight Time", and "The Great Pretender". A Salute To America's Golden Oldies Saturday, July 5 - The Ladies Lesliey Gore first entered the Top 40 charts with the #1 hit, "It's My Party", in May of 1963, just after her 17th birthday. She quickly racked up several more hit records as she became the standard bearer for teenage angst. Such Top 5 hits as "Judy's Turn To Cry", "She's A Fool", and "You Don't Own Me" united teenage girls around the world with someone who seemed to be going through the same things they were. Leslie recorded eleven Top 40 hits total, all before her 21st birthday. She continues to delight audiences around the world.

Peggy March had one big hit during her decade with RCA Records, and that was when she was 15 years old. But that song, "I Will Follow Him," spent three weeks at the number one spot on the charts and even topped the R&B charts for a week as well. Her subsequent hits, "I Wish I Were a Princess" and "Hello Heartache, Goodbye Love," also scored on the Top 40.

The Chiffons were one of the best early-'60s New York girl groups, combining sassiness and innocence on several of the style's greatest classics including their first number on hit "He's So Fine," They followed that hit with the "One Fine Day, and later recorded other memorable hits "I Have a Boyfriend" and the Motown-influenced "Sweet Talkin' Guy".

The Angels' 1963 number one hit, "My Boyfriend's Back," is one of the half-dozen or so girl group classics.

Hand clap beats, sassy vocals, slightly campy lyrics, and an arrangement paced by wailing horns and street corner harmonies; it was a surefire hit.

The Angels had actually been around for a while before "My Boyfriend's Back," making the Top 20 in 1961 with the ballad "Till," and the Top 40 with a follow-up, "Cry Baby Cry."

The Shangri-Las were the greatest girl group, combining an innocent adolescent charm with more than a hint of darkness, singing about dead bikers, teenage runaways, and doomed love affairs as well as ebullient high-school crushes. "Leader of the Pack," with its periodic motorcycle roars and crescendo of crashing glass, was the death-rock classic became the Shangri-Las' signature tune, reaching number one. They followed that with "Give Him a Great Big Kiss" and "I Can Never Go Home Anymore," a runaway tale that took their patented pathos to the extreme.

The Marvelettes were probably the most pop-oriented of Motown's major female acts, and they recorded Motown's first number one single, "Please Mr. Postman". "Postman," as well as other early-'60s hits like "Playboy," "Twistin' Postman," and "Beechwood 4-5789," were
